

ARTISTIC HEALINGS

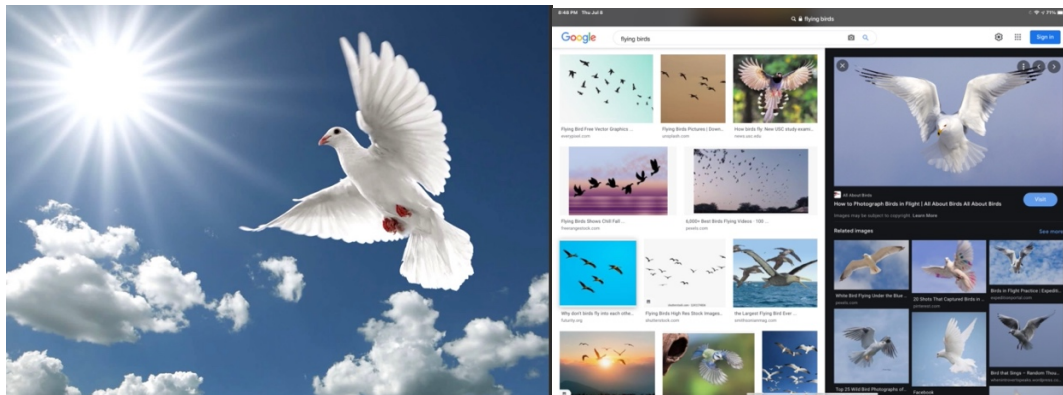

Gail's Inspiration Corner

IMAGES

- Adding images such as animals, is easy to do when. I like to pull images directly off the internet, then trace over them.
- Whether it's a Google search or another webpage, I consider it fair game if you're not trying to copy it exactly. You're free to look for inspiration anywhere!
- Below are a few bird photos I've discovered while looking for inspiration in my own work:

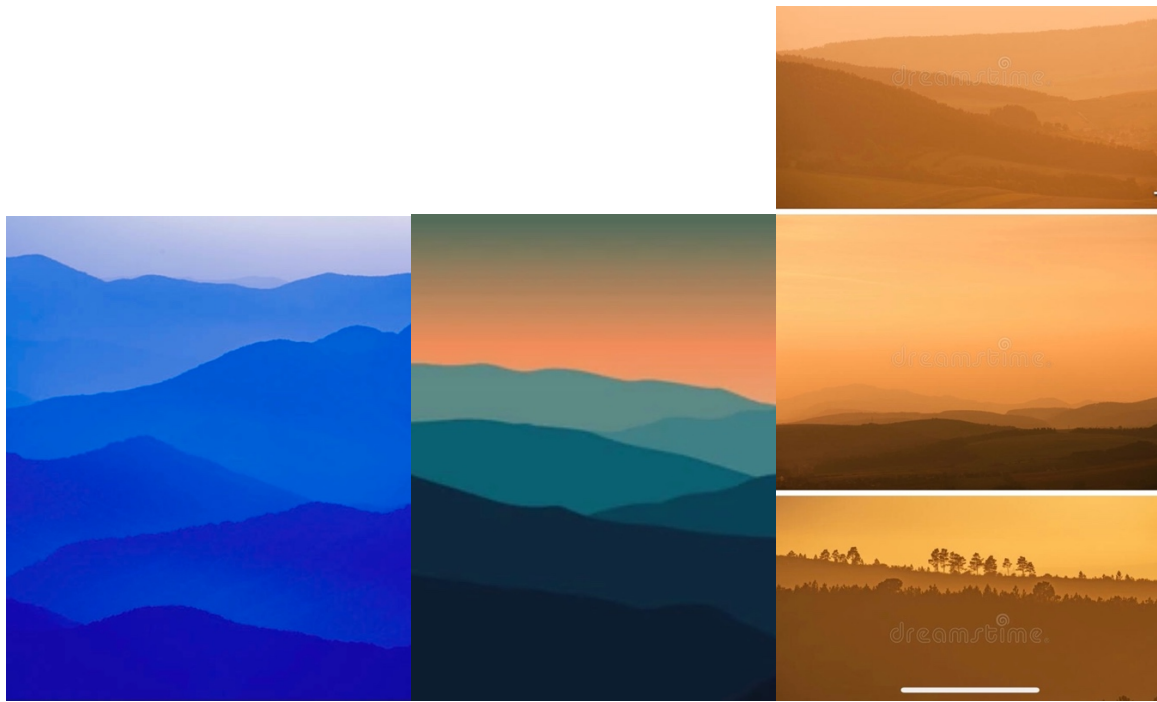

20 Shots That Captured Birds in

LANDSCAPES

- As nice as it would be where we could all live somewhere that is a close drive to a beautiful landscape or scenery, the reality is that it can be more challenging than expected.
- Again, look for images where you can draw inspiration from other work or simply colors and impressions of various landscapes.
- Below are a few examples:

FRAMES

- There's nothing quite like the feeling of finishing a piece of artwork where you can stand back and admire what you've accomplished!
- For a relatively inexpensive price, you can upload a photo of your finished piece and get it framed.
- Check out the link below for one site I like to use:
